

Rev. Anne C.S. Marshall

Anne grew up in Circleville, Ohio. She attended Ohio State University for undergraduate where she studied English and minored in Spanish. After college she moved to Richmond, Virginia to attend seminary at Union Presbyterian Seminary. In seminary she earned both Master of Divinity and Master of Art in Christian Education degrees.

Anne is just completing a two year residency program at Second Presbyterian Church in Indianapolis. In addition to regular preaching and pastoral care duties, Anne has spent much time in the areas of mission and Christian nurture. During her time at Second Presbyterian, she has overseen numerous projects of the Deacons, provided leadership for the hunger ministry team, led two mission trips to Mexico, organized opportunities for ecumenical community service projects, and translated for Spanish speakers who have come to the church for assistance.

In the area of Christian nurture, Anne has organized and led workshops on the sacraments, taught Bible studies to people of various ages, written curriculum for current and future use, evaluated curriculum for the Sunday school program and helped plan a congregation-wide retreat.

Anne's husband, Gray, is also a PC(USA) pastor. Gray serves as a designated pastor at Hope United Presbyterian Church in Plainfield.
